English Judgeships.

[From the New York Evening Post.] Mr. Justice Hannen, who has just been appointed to succeed Lord Penzance as judge of the English Probate and Divorce Court, is the youngest judge on the bench. He never "took silk," as it is termed—i. e., was called within walled in all diseases of the Liver, Bowells and Kidneys. Thousands of the good and great in all parts of the country vouch for its wonderful and peculiar power in purifying the Blood, stimulating the torpid Liver and Bowells, and imparting new Life and Vigor to the whole system. SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is acknowledged to have no equal as a the inner bar as a Queen's counsel-but was raised direct from being a stuff gown barrister to a seat on the bench. He will be the third judge appointed to the Court of Probace and Divorce since its institution in 1858.

The salary attached to this office is the same as that of the ordinary judges-$25,000 a year -with a retiring pension of $17,500 after fif-teen years' service. The position is difficult and arduous, but the temptation to take, the post is that the judge of this court is an antocrat, and is always appointed a member of the privy council, and has more patronage at his discosal than all the rest of the judges put to gether. When the English probate system was remodelled, in 1858, the various ancient courts, both civil and ecclesiastical, for proving wills, were at a stroke superseded by the Court of Probate, and in their stead forty "district registries" established over the country at large towns, where wills are proved. A new will must now be proved within the district in which the testator died, or in the principal registry in London. The judge of the court appoints all these registrars, both in town and country, and in this way has patronage to the extent of about $350,000 a year.

In former days the judges sold their patronage, and the first Lord Ellenborough was offered $400,000 for the reversion of the place of clerk of the King's bench. He declined this offer, and gave the appointment to his son, who died two years ago, having held the office-worth $35,000 a year-about forty years. The story is well known of how his father heard of the vacancy when out riding on father heard of the vacancy when outriding on horseback; immediately dismounted; told his PURE DRUGS AND CHEMICALS, PAINTS, groom to hold his horse, and taking a pencil from his pocket wrote his son's appointment on a scrap of paper, the groom being witness and the saddle serving as table. Then he mounted and rode comfortably home, secure of a splendid provision for his son even if he CLARRIDGE & GRIGG, should himself be thrown and killed on the DRUGGISTS AND APOTHECARIES,

Nearly all the great legal sinecures in England are now gone, but the greatest yet remains in the shape of two offices worth nearly $60,000 a year, which have been been held for about fifty years by an old clergyman who has had nothing on earth to do in return save to sign his receipt. This venerable ecclesiastic to whom such an amazing share of legal loaves and fishes have fallen is a Mr. Thurlow, nephew of the Lord Chancellor of the time, the school-companion of Cowper, to whom there is such frequent allusion in that poet's letters. To feather the nest of his family was an object which Thurlow never lost sight of. When he asked for the bishopric of Durham, the great pecuniary prize of the British bench of bishops, and then worth $100,000 a year, George the Third said: "Anything else, my Lord; but the bishopric of Durham has always been bestowed on gentlemen of high family and position." "Then, Sire," said Thurlow, "I ask it for the brother of the Lord High Chancellor of England," and the King had to give in. Sales of office are now and long have been completely at an end, and the judicial bench is utterly free from all suspicion of complicity in such proceedings. Mr. Justice Hannen's successor as puisne judge is Mr. Archibald, brother of the British consul-general at

MR. BESSEMER, of England is a scientific man of no mean attainments, and of so practical a turn of mind that he has made an immense fortune by his new process of manufacturing steel. But Mr. Bessemer is mortal, and has been sea sick, and don't like it, at which we do not wonder. Many persons have ex-perienced the same qualms, however, without thinking of a remedy, unless, indeed, it be brandy, or creosote, or ice bags to the spine, all of which are aggravating humbugs. Mr. Bessemer soon perceived that instead of experimenting with his own internal arrangements, by trying to pacify them with creosote or braudy, he would have more prospect of success if he tried those of the ship itself. So he has invented a swinging cabin, that is said to act on land like a charm, for on land only has it yet been tested. Mr. Beasemer has tried it in his garden, at Denmark Hill, near London, and got up as good an imitation of a storm at sea as was possible by machinery. A London paper saye: "There was not more motion than in a railway carriage when the couplings are not well fastened up, and Mr. Bessemer explained that the slight grunts we heard and the trivial vibration we felt were due to the length of the hydraulic pipes, by means of which the mimic sea motion was obtained. But that as a broad fact, the effect of rolling at sea has been disposed of, it is impossible to doubt after the experience of yesterday." - Baltimore Gazette, MARRIAGES.—The man who said that he had observed this year that there were more men married than women, was right after all, paradoxical as it sounds. The person who collects the statistics in England, Belgium and France has been around, and here is the sum of his deductions, as given in Appleton's Journal. The reason why men marry more frequently than women is because three or four widowers marry for every widow that re-enters the married state, This, of course, is a delicate compliment, extracted even from the terrible dryness of a statistical table, to the ladies. Further than this, it is demonstrated that there is more hope for an old maid, than for an old bachelor, in the ratio of sixty-two of the for-mer who marry, to fifty-two of the latter who are able to get anybody to take pity on their lonely state or estate as the case may be. The proportion of widowers to widows is startling, In England sixty six widowers marry and only twenty-one windows, in Belgium forty-eight twenty-one windows, in Belgium forty-eight twenty-one windows, and in France windows windows with the constant windows windows windows with the constant windows wi the ratio is forty to twelve. As to the ages at which persons are married, young men from fifteen to twenty usually marry girls some years their senior; men over twenty marry generally younger than themselves .- Balt. Gasette.

THE BEST PRESENT FOR A

CHRISTMAS GIFT IS A WHEELER & WILSON

Family Sewing Machine. The reputation of this Machine stands so high in all parts of the world as scarcely to need comment. They have been awarded the highest premiums in every important contest among Sewing Machines in this country and in Europe.

They do all kinds of family work, from the heaviest beaver and felt to the finest sikes, that other machines will not stitch.

They work easily, rapidly, noiselessly, and are not liable to get out of order.

Washington, D. C., April 30, 1872.

Having bought and used four of your Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines for the last seventeen years in my family, and to the entire satisfaction and pleasure of everymen ber thereof, we therefore cordially unite, from a sense of duty, in recommending it to the public generally as being the best, the easiest running, most desirable and most durable Sewing Machine we have ever known.

My two little daughters when they were so small that their feet, when sitting on a chair, would not reach the treadle, and were consequently obliged to stand on one foot and run the machine with the other, which they could and did do right along, with perfect ease and comfort. Both of them to day own one, and to part with them would be like parting with a dear friend.

I bought my Wheeler & Wilson seventeen years ago, and during that time it has never needed the least repairs, and is just as good today, to all appearances, as it was when I first bought it.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.
These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, vis:

the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another is blighted with our own. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votary o pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds o this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery de ters him from applying to those who, from edu cation and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease makes their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commisseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to that undiscovered country "from whence no traveller returns."

It is a melancholy fact that thousands DIE victims to this terrible disease, through falling into the hands of ignorant or unskilful PRETENDERS, who, by the use of that deadly Poison, Mercury, &c., destroy the constitution, and incapable of curing, keep the unhappy sufferer month after month taking their noxious or injurious, compounds, and instead of heine rewhence no traveller returns." injurious compounds, and instead of being re stored to a renewal of Life, Vigor and Happiness in despair leaves him with ruined Health to sigh over his galling disappointment.
